

Lucy Smith Archive

Born in Sydney in 1968, Lucy T. Smith moved to Townsville in the 1990s where she attained Bachelor and Master Degrees from James Cook University. Having lectured and tutored at JCU and the Open College of the Arts, Queensland, Smith subsequently gained work as a freelance botanical illustrator and teacher of Botanical Art and Illustration at the Royal Botanic Gardens in Kew, London, and as a teacher at the Chelsea School of Botanical Art. As well as being the recipient of several prestigious awards, her works have been exhibited in several locations in Australia, England and Germany, and numerous scientific books and journals have used Smith's scientific illustrations.

Archive Location: 489

Detailed Listing:

LTS/1/1-3 Exhibition, The Palms of North Queensland: An Exhibition of Botanical Illustrations, by Lucy Smith, Pinnacles Gallery Thuringowa, 9-21 March 1999:

1. Opening invitation, 12 March 1999
2. Catalogue
3. A4 flyer

LTS/2/1-2 Photographic prints:

1. Forest palms
2. Stand of palms, ant hill; annotation on reverse, "Cat no.5"

LTS/3 Newsletter, Kew Scientist, No.22, October 2002. Article, "New Guinea Palms," [n.p.], features sketch by Lucy Smith

LTS/4 Eyeline: Contemporary Visual Arts, No.29, Summer 1995. Article, "Post-Natural Culture and Pre-Cultural Nature," by Anneke Silver, p.24-25, refers to Lucy Smith and her work [magazine also has articles by or referring to JCU T150 Exhibition artists, Robert Preston, p.22-23; Anneke Silver and Anne Lord, p.26]

LTS/5 Article, "In the Palm of Her Hand," by Brett Judge in Townsville Bulletin supplementary feature, "Good Guide," No.72, 5 March 1999, p.23, 25. Features Lucy Smith and her work

LTS/6 Newsletter, Outlook [JCU], Vol.13, No.5, July 2001. Article, "Drawing on Nature," p.4, refers to JCU graduate, Lucy Smith.