

My friend

As you may suppose, I have plenty time for everything here in the beach. This morning I awaked up with the mania to write something in English. Well, I said to myself. Where I can find a subject to give me the chance to say something good? After a moment I put my hands to my head and pressed it, and ~~is coming~~ ^{came} out what you are going to read.

The first thing my request is do not looking for any grammar faults, but only look to understand the idea that moves me to write these few words.

You and I have talked several times about our particular position and the position of this country where we are leaving. As human beings we have the right to search of enjoying ^{ourselves} as much as possible in this world. Shall we be capable to find the way?

For my part I give all my illusions up. I consider I have already arrived to the bottom of the road, more or less satisfied. But your position if my glasses do not deceive me I see it a lot different than mine. At present you have nothing sure. your subsistence depends from your wages, that means you have always a headache for to morrow. You may think what the hell are you talking about? you must be calm my friend. We will have time for every thing.

If I am not mistaken our friendships give me the right to tell you everything I believe is good for both you and I.

Why are you laughing now?
Bright my friend, listen. Every word I am going to write ~~my~~ may be wrong, but you may be sure every one of them come from my heart. Thirty three years ago (No yesterday) I found you in the steamer Osterley. since then, we have been living in the same atmosphere. we have talked and committ^{ed} our familiar relations ~~that~~ ^{what} have passed at this life. but I wish to tell you something more. The other day you told me you have nothing sure yet. Well, your position such as I see it is not quite right. you have more or less the means to change it. you must take the things calmly and coldly before you make any determination you must look the pro. and con... but you must change.

As you know, we pass only once in that earth. I hope to see you very soon ~~to be~~ boss of yourself like before. That would be a great satisfaction for me. to see you and all my friends to enjoy as much as we can the years we have to pass at this world.

Your friend,

Note. Now you have finished, I am ready to receive any corrections you have found in my broken English
